A watercolor illustration serves as the background for the cover. It depicts a woman with long blonde hair and a green top in the foreground, smiling. Behind her, a young child with blonde hair and a red bow is visible. To the left, a soldier in a green uniform and cap stands. The background features stylized orange tree branches and a yellow sun. The title text is overlaid on the upper portion of the illustration.

To the reader...a book is usually composed of a beginning and an end. This year, however; there are two beginnings - because I feel that there is more than one way to relive a past experience.

The 1974 RHODODENDRON staff has worked numerous hours in order to bring to you, the students, faculty, and administration of Appalachian State University, a book that is both relevant and enjoyable to read. The book was ours for one year as we carefully transferred our ideas onto paper...now the 1974 RHODODENDRON belongs to you.

Cawl Shannon

B eginning . . . of a book, or of a story, true or fictitious . . . By taking individual letters and combining them to form words, by grouping these words into sentences, and arranging these sentences into some type of pattern- and individual life can be relived. With the visual aid of pictures, the year 1973-74 can be viewed as many times and in as many different ways as each person's imagination will let it be seen. Emotions reappear, and change, as the seasons drift from one to another, or as a competitive game comes to a close, with some rejoicing and others feeling the pain of defeat. Maybe the senses can once again hear music, smell the flowers or feel someone's touch.

To some people at ASU, the year was filled with life, interaction, and emotion. For those people, use your imagination to recapture and enjoy the year 1973-74.

On Campus Living

To 3500 students at ASU home is now a single room tucked away in a maze of hallways. There is security and companionship from a roommate or from an endless number of dorm inhabitants. Different origins, religions, races, ages, personalities, and interests provide challenges for the individual. There are always people to talk to and to listen to, play paddleball with, eat with, socialize and study with. No hassles of electric bills, water bills, transportation to classes, groceries, and cooking. For some it is a comfort to be assured of being provided with food, shelter, and clean laundry. For others, it would be a relief to get away from the close quarters, institutional food, and the rest of on-campus requirements.

To work, to help, and to be helped, to learn sympathy through suffering, to learn faith by perplexity, is to reach truth through wonder, behold! - this is what it means to prosper, this is what it is to live.

Phillip Brooks

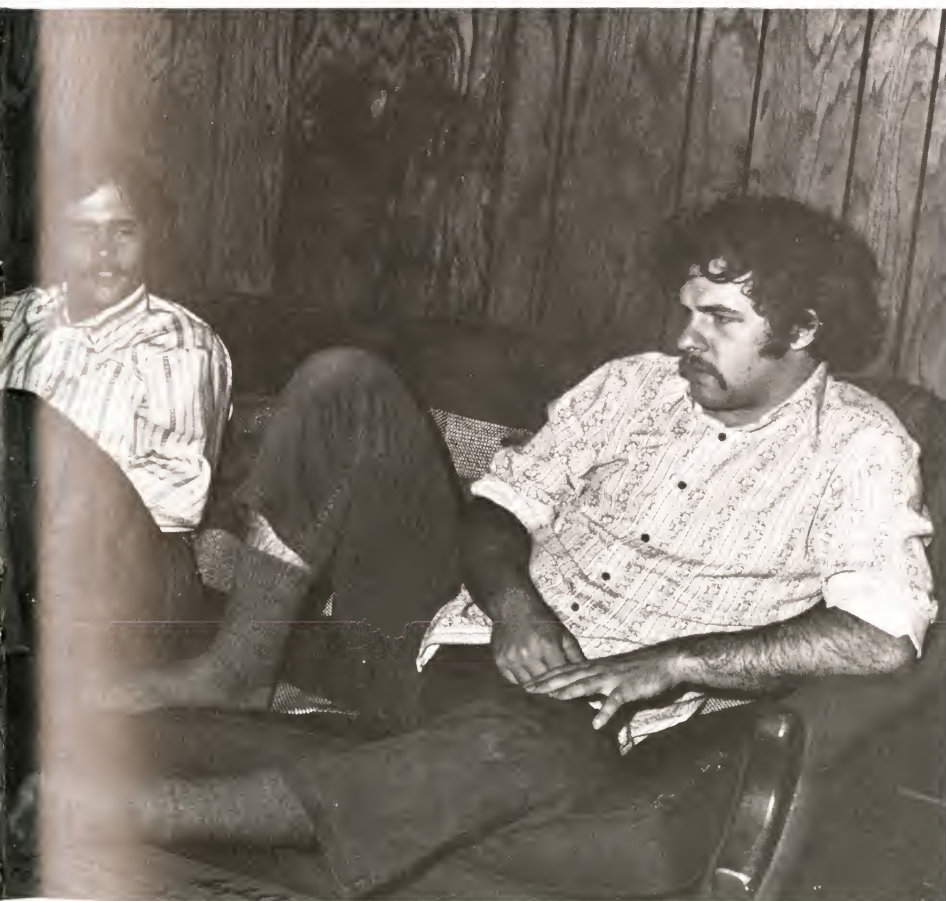

Off Campus Living

The other 4000 at ASU usually find themselves moving away from campus at the first convenient moment. Now it is possible to eat breakfast at noon, lunch at 3:00, and dinner at 8:00 that night. No more hunting up the campus police when it is after curfew. No more hearing your next door neighbor through the electric socket. No more traffic tickets because you forgot to move your car from the stadium parking lot. Now it is possible to stay in Boone after the tourists are gone, when there is snow on the ground during holidays, or when you just want some time to be alone. But with this new freedom comes a new type of loneliness for some people. When you need people they are not always around. The feeling of being a part of the university can tend to fade. There are more bills and responsibilities. But to most of these "others", the new problems and situations are a welcome challenge.

Under the leadership of Dr. Frank Lovrich, the Mountaineer Baseball team ended the 1973 season by winning the Southern Conference title. The defending SC titlists, who split two games during last season's District III playoffs in their first appearance in an NCAA post-season tournament, have four All-SC players--two who were All-District III--back in the fold to form the nucleus of another possible championship squad.

Going into the 1974 season, ASU has a new coach, Jim Morris, who joined the staff this past fall after working as an assistant coach at North Carolina. Returning to the ASU staff is Jim Timmons as assistant coach. "Sure, we probably rate as favorites to repeat as conference champion this year," said Morris, "but the league will be better balanced this season, and there will be stronger competition within the conference--which I think is great."

Elections

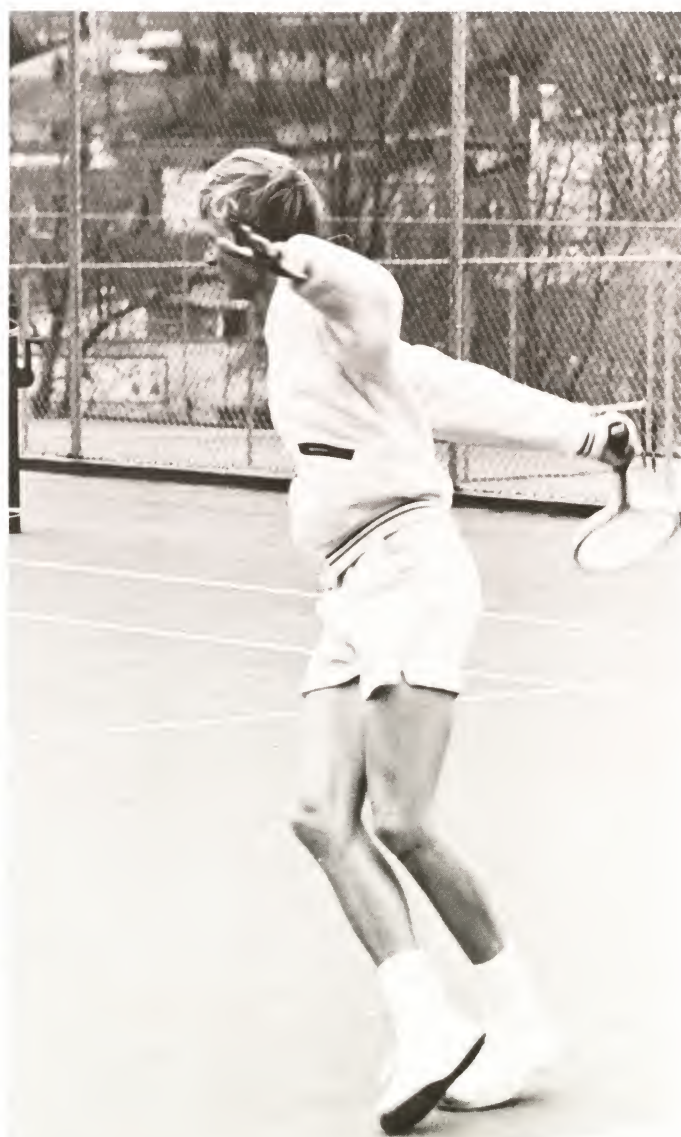

Elections '73 marked another year of campaigning. Malcolm Carroll ran against Barry Ritchie, Randy Shaver and Robert Leak while Jeff Morgan campaigned against Lynn Murphy and Earl Sheridan. Ron Tuttle tried successfully against Dan Crookshank while Sue Eccles was unopposed.

The different campaign factions posed issues from cable television to a more liberal mealbook program. Apathy was shown by the student body as usual but for those who were campaigning, the elections were close.

Race the River

Call it "Deliverance," Grand Prix or a test of bravery. For those who experienced the Inner-tube River Race, directed by the Intramural Department, it was a conglomerate of them all. During the summer and again in the fall, students gathered to challenge Watauga River. The course, beginning at highway 105 and running parallel to 194 toward Valle Crutis, proved to be more than just Kraut Creek. Back on shore, comments ranged from "idiots!" to "it just wasn't long enough!"

A.S.U. Marching Band

Once again the color and sound-power of North Carolina's "Band of Distinction" has filled Appalachian's Conrad Stadium. This year the band went through its usual rugged week of band camp before school, putting in over forty hours of rehearsal time. All that could not be accomplished here had to be done in the band's regular rehearsal time or early on Saturday mornings before games.

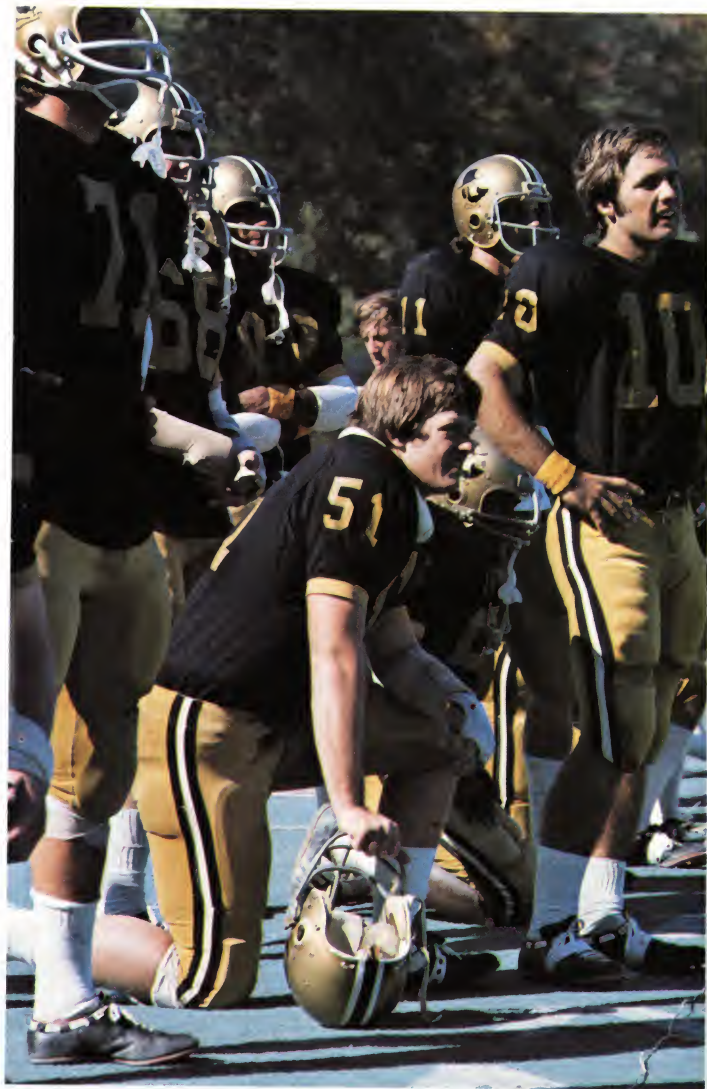

This year the band performed at all home football games and traveled to three away games: Furman University, East Tennessee State University, and the University of South Carolina.

At the Homecoming and Christmas parades the Marching Band filled the occasion with the appropriate spirit, and topped that off with that genuine Mountaineer spirit that belongs to every ASU student.

All the long hours and headaches that go into getting ready for a successful performance have paid off. Directed by Mr. Joe F. Phelps, the core of the Marching Band's success, and led on the field by Drum Major John Alexander, the 108 playing members, 16 flaggers, and 6 majorettes of the Marching Band entertained the crowds and did their best to build that "good old Mountaineer spirit."

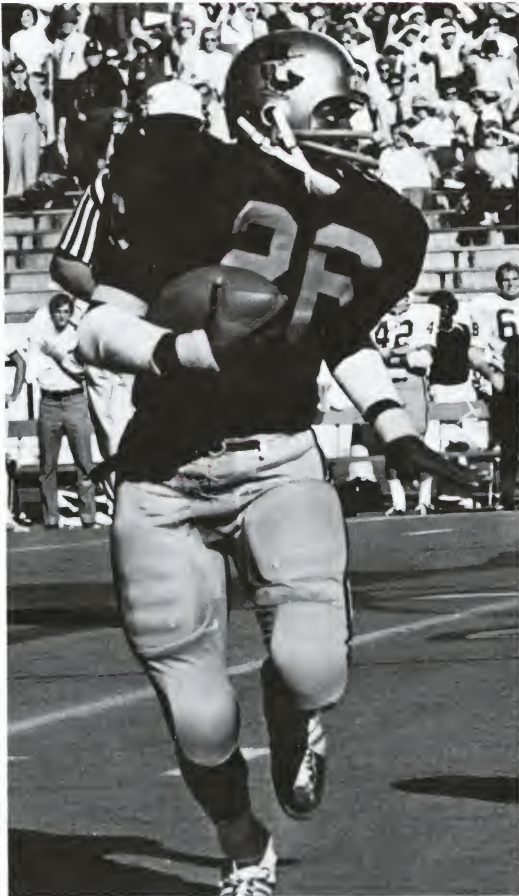

The pride that flowed from the Marching Band was evident from each of its 130 members as the band exemplified the spirit of the "profession". There is something mystic about how 130 people, each doing a different pattern of movement, can form into a kaleidoscope of sound and color. But if there is one band that does it well, it is ASU's own North Carolina's "Band of Distinction"!

Football

Inexperience, injuries to key starters, and youthful mistakes due to that inexperience plagued ASU throughout the season. However, despite what head coach Jim Brakefield described as a "disappointing season," Appalachian's 1973 football team made some rather significant strides in its growth to major college status. In only its second season as a member of the Southern Conference, ASU climbed from the league cellar to a tie for fourth place in the eight-team loop, setting no less than a dozen new records in the process.

Fast. Fantastic. Fun. These three words describe the sport of field hockey. This year's ASU Women's Field Hockey Team put these words into action. Although the season's record was 5-2-5, the Lady Apps showed well the entire season. Spirit, teamwork and enthusiasm increased with each game.

Coach Vi Clark, in her second season as head mastermind, guided the team through regular season and tournament play and was closely aided by captain Lil Fesperman. Coach Clark's efforts were rewarded by the placement of four players on the two Deep South teams. Pat Dunn, Patti Hart, Lynn Kearney and Sherry Salyer represented the Deep South Association in the Southeastern tournament in Virginia. Sherry was chosen for one of the Southeast teams and thus participated in the National Tournament in Boston.

Deep South

Appalachian was proud to host the 1973 Deep South Field Hockey Tournament this year. There were 14 schools from the Southern region participating in this three-day tournament. With the weather cooperating to our liking, the excitement of first-time turf play for many schools, and an excellent display of the skills required for good hockey, this year's tournament was a tremendous success.

Under the direction of Dr. Fox, Educational Psychology 302 has been redesigned to cater to the individual. The student is allowed to work at his own pace. During the quarter, each student listens to tapes, completes the FOKITS (kits containing work materials), reads a few paperbacks and attends rap sessions. In addition, he can choose whether or not he wishes to attend the informal lectures and has at his fingertips various means of obtaining help.

As the soccer team opened its 1973 season, the team was faced with the formidable task of repeating as Southern Conference Champions. To overcome the problems of inexperience and the pressure that comes in a game situation, the team had to rely on conditioning, leadership, desire, and superior coaching to hold it together.

When a team is on the top, everyone tries to shoot it down. This was another problem the ASU soccer team had to face. To stay ahead of these teams was up to the individual himself. This included working hours after soccer practice and conditioning during the off-season as well. By following these conditions, each player was able to play their best and develop a championship attitude.

Accompanying any championship team is a superior coach. Dr. V. Christian gave the soccer team the desire to win, which has to come in being a champion. Without Coach Christian's leadership and knowledge of the game, the ASU soccer team would just be another soccer team.

Because each player gave 110% during each game, the ASU soccer team became a winner. As defending champion, the team will have to face more pressure and better teams in the 1974 season than it had to face last season. Now the goal in the mind of every ASU soccer player is to keep the winning tradition.

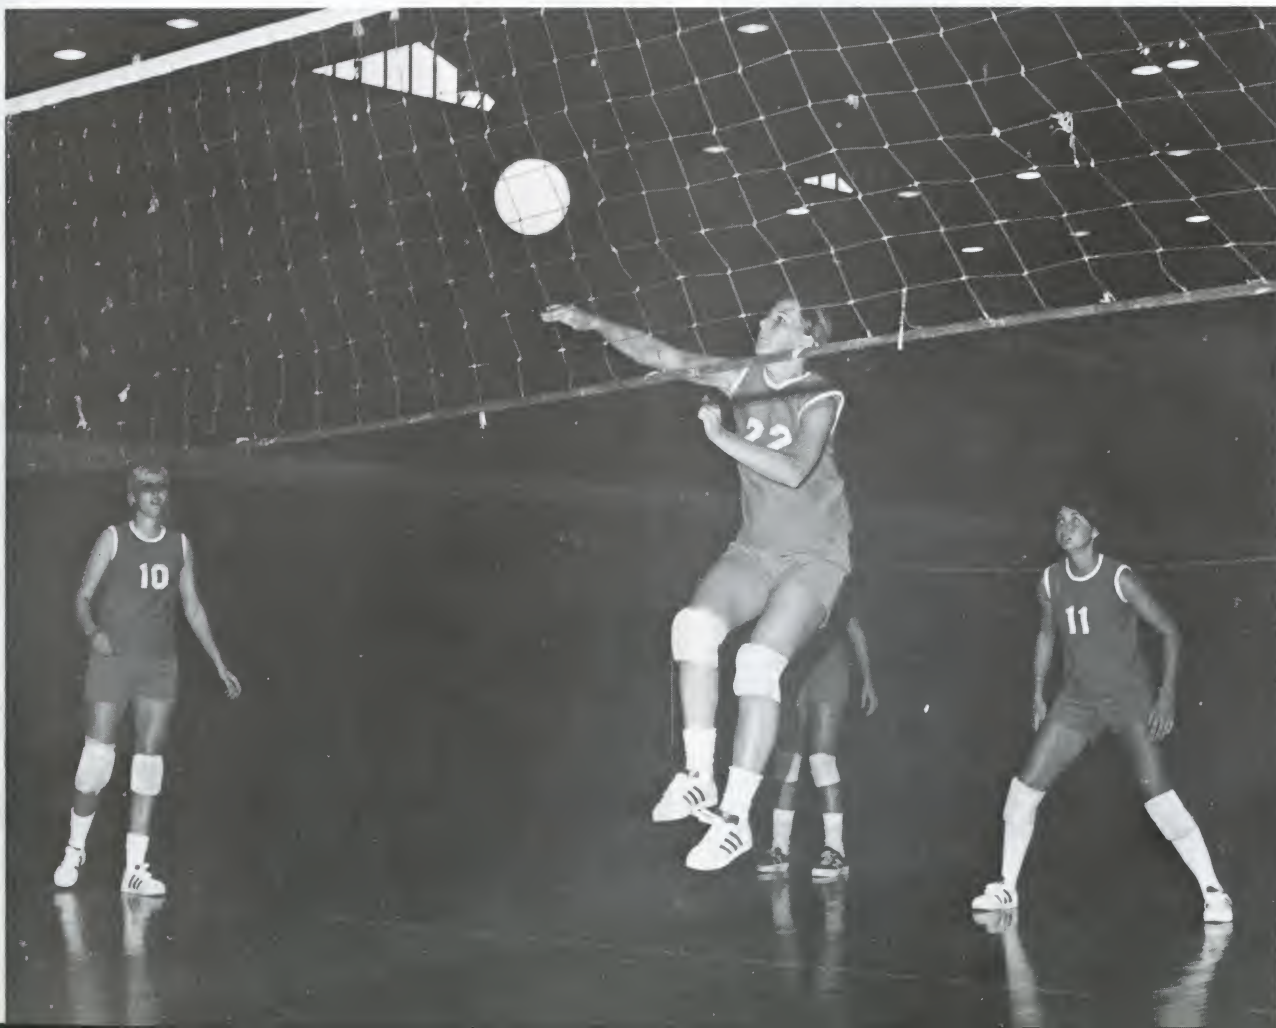

Rotate!

The women's 1973 volleyball team had an up and down season. It gained in consistency during the final matches of the season and by the state tournament was molded into a strong offensive and defensive unit. The Lady Apps reached the quarter finals of the state tournament by upsetting East Carolina University, defeating High Point soundly and narrowly losing to Elon. Duke University beat the team in the quarter finals and eventually played Western Carolina for the championship.

The spirit and willingness of each individual to work as a team made this season a success. As for next year, the team anticipates another rewarding and exciting experience.

Very Vigorous, Variable Volleyball

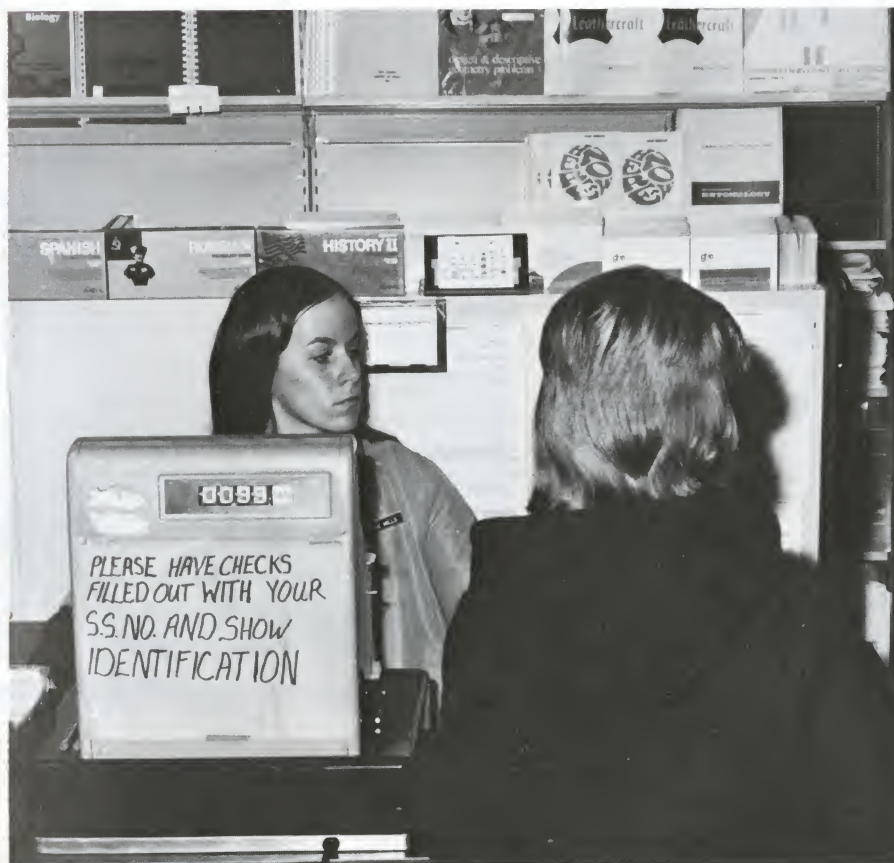

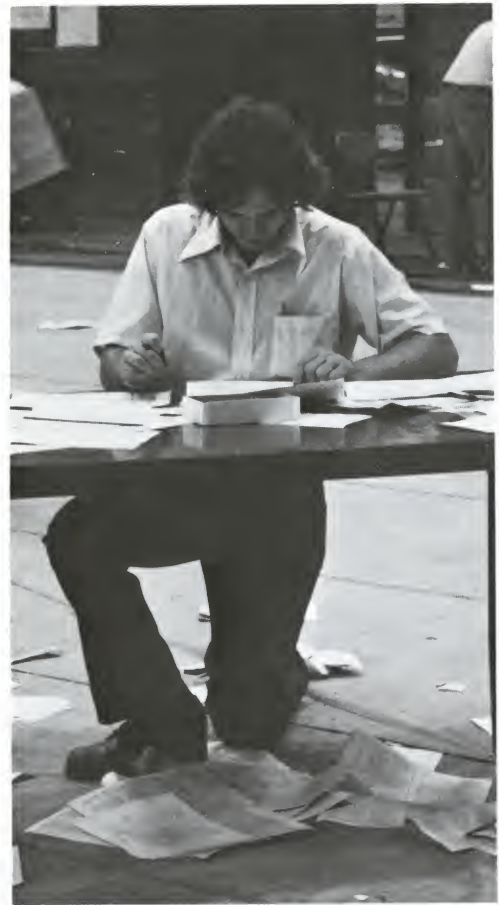

Appalachian hosted its annual Invitational Volleyball Tournament this October, there were 16 schools in Boone for the competition. The two day tournament was thrilling and the teams exhibited a fine performance of how power volleyball is played.

In the round robin and single elimination tournament, the winner was the University of Tennessee, beating West Georgia in a very exciting, dynamic match.

This tournament, led by Dr. Judy Clarke and Lil Fesperman, was a great success and provided much fun and excellence in power volleyball.

I am a gymnast. I work four hours per day six days a week. I know that if I am going to reach the goals that I have set for myself that I must continue my practice schedule twelve months a year. At times I am held together by tape about my wrist and my ankle. I wear tape on my hands under my hand grips so that the calluses and raw flesh on my palms does not tear. My back sometimes gets sore and the pulled muscle in my leg hasn't felt right for days. I sometimes get depressed. I have been working on a trick for weeks and I still find that it is not quite within my grasp. No one understands me. Even with all my problems the coach keeps yelling, "try it one more time and do it right." I don't expect to become famous or even real good. I don't expect five or ten thousand people to show-up at a meet and watch me perform. I know that if I quit few people will ever know and even fewer people really care. Why do I do this? I am a gymnast.

What's Really Happening?

Pulled muscles, taped knees, and bruises are only a few of the souvenirs an athlete receives in preparing for competition. The days, weeks, and months preceeding THE event, each individual is training his body and mind to perform at the peak of his ability. But what are the players actually doing behind the scenes to achieve this goal? This is a frequently asked question which several coaches have answered. As one may expect, each has his personal philosophy concerning the objectives of his sport and the training techniques employed to reach them.

A common primary consideration of training among the coaches is the time involved. However, the length of pre-season training varies among the sports. Coach Bill Clinebell, for example, encourages the gymnasts to work-out all year-round. His reason is that once a person has acquired the flexibility necessary for gymnastics, it can be lost quickly if he does not maintain it. In addition to flexibility, strength is essential for the men's events in order to execute the moves. Thus, Coach Clinebell recommends that the team members spend time in the weight room during post season practice.

Swimming, like gymnastics requires a great deal of flexibility and strength. Probably more important, though, is a swimmer's endurance. In order to achieve these goals, Coach Ole Larson has the swimmers start pre-season training by working on the mechanics of the various strokes, weight training and flexibility. From there, they begin swimming two miles a day, six days a week to increase their endurance. To maintain these abilities, swimming too, requires year-round workouts.

In contrast to these sports, the Baseball team members begin individually working-out in November rather than all year. During the winter months, the players can be seen on the Varsity Gym balcony working at the nine stations Coach Jim Morris has planned as part of his training program which include the pitchout, toss ball, and batting cage. These areas provide an opportunity for the players to develop and practice all of the skills involved in the sport. The exercises emphasized in the total training program focus on the shoulders, wrists, and legs as these areas of the body must be flexible, agile, and capable of quick movements.

Some elements of each of these sports are combined in soccer; the flexibility of gymnastics, the endurance of swimming, and the quickness of baseball. To achieve these goals, Coach Vaughn Christian has designed a program which emphasizes the abilities equally and allows each player to progress at his own rate. Individual exercises in stretching and agility may open a day of practice followed by each player working to build his endurance. Coach Christian does not have the team members run continually but, instead he suggests individual running programs related to each player's heart rate, which allows for periods of rest.

From these few sports, it appears that there is much more to athletics than just running or hitting a ball. A variety of abilities are necessary to perform well before the spectators and each team member is encouraged to develop these at his personal rate. Thus, a new approach to training is emerging which emphasizes this individuality. Therefore, in training and regular practice the athletes are allowed greater freedom to work in areas that they feel will be most beneficial to themselves. According to Coach Morris, individualization combined with variety keeps the players busy and prevents boredom during practice. As a result, their enthusiasm is not allowed to die.

This new approach raises another question concerning the coaches' training programs. What are the psychological needs of each player in practice and during competition? All of the coaches interviewed agree that the self-confidence of the team members is most important and once this is accomplished, the physical training is much easier. Also vital to good performance is self-discipline, especially during the rough moments encountered by the athletes. The mental training therefore plays a very important role in the moments of performance. As stated in a comment by Sgt. Maj. Harvey Webber, Coach of the Rifle team, a single, universal element necessary for athletic success is "an individual's desire to excel".

Biology

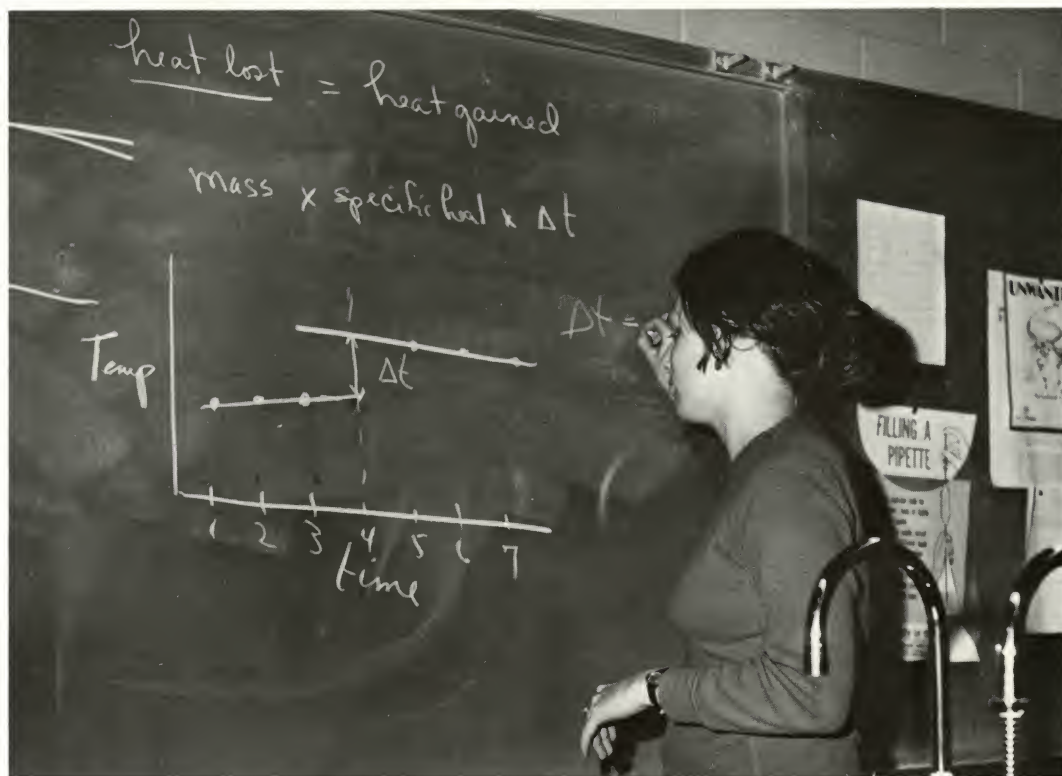

This past summer, thirty students from the Biology Department along with two professors, Dr. Richard Henson and Dr. I. W. Carpenter, Jr., traveled 12,000 miles across the country. They passed through twenty six states, one foreign country, and twelve national parks. Each student received nine hours credit and was graded on their active participation during the trip as well as on a rather lengthy paper summarizing their studies.

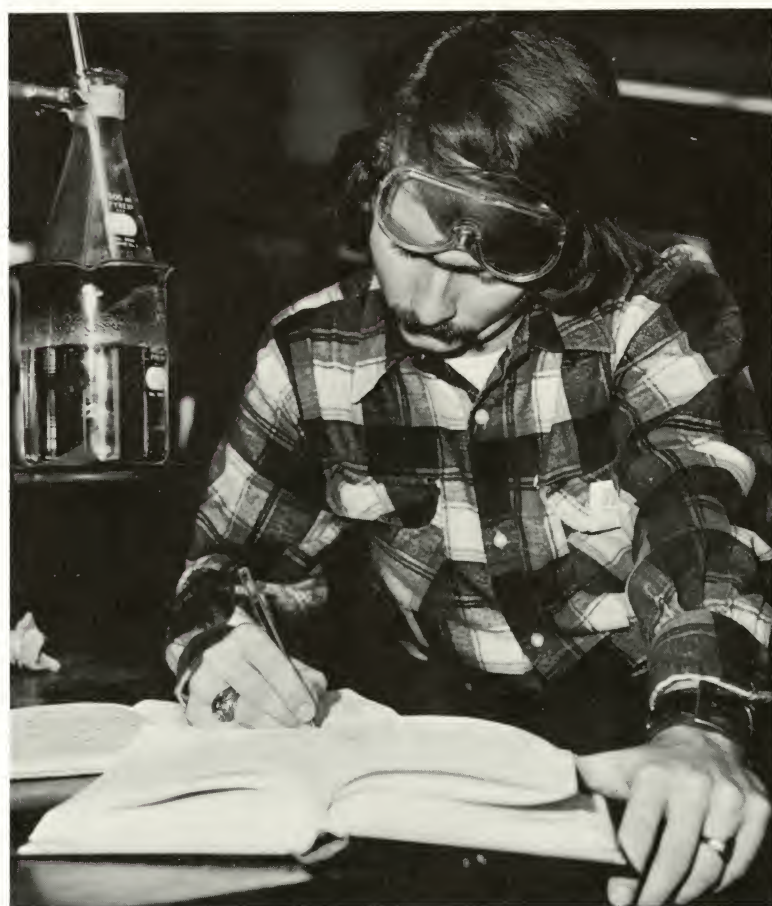

On their way across the country, the group was able to do a study on the ecological elevations from sea level up to 12,000 feet. They ran water samples from one area to the next and studied the marine environments in Florida, Texas, Mexico and California. All the major biomes of the United States were visited and studied.

The entire trip was not all work. Many of the students were able to see for the first time such cities as New Orleans and San Francisco. They also made a visit to several universities; the University of Arizona, the University of Montana, the University of California at Berkley and Oregon State University to mention a few.

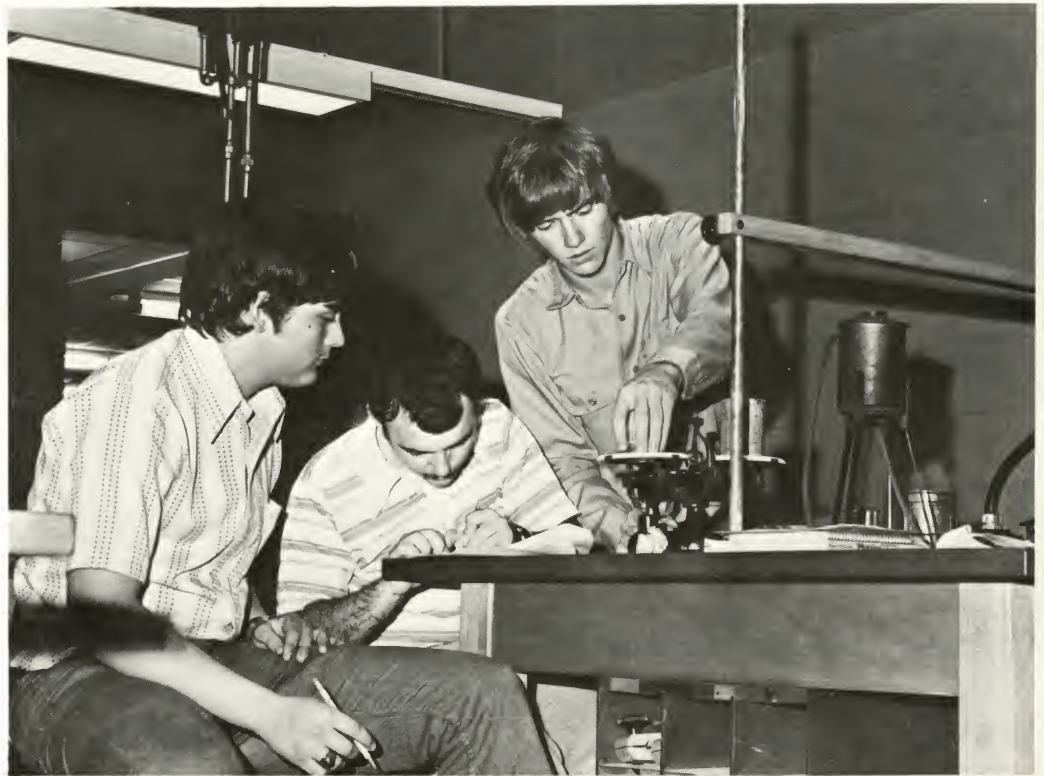

Chemistry

Chemistry and Society is a new course being taught for the first time this year. It has been designed specifically for non-science majors. The course is structured to cover topics within the area of chemistry that illustrate the fundamental concepts and how these concepts have and currently affect our daily lives. The material content includes an investigation of atomic and molecular theory, the significance of chemical bonding, the physical states of matter, commercial chemicals, man-made polymers and fibers, ethical and non-ethical drugs and nuclear chemistry. The course will conclude with a look at the interaction of chemistry and civilization.

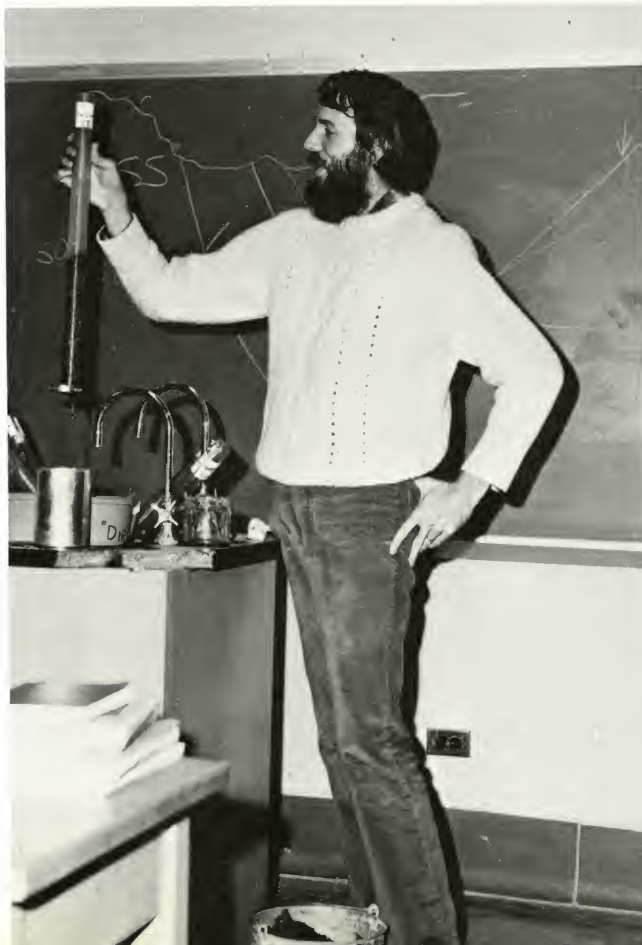

Physics

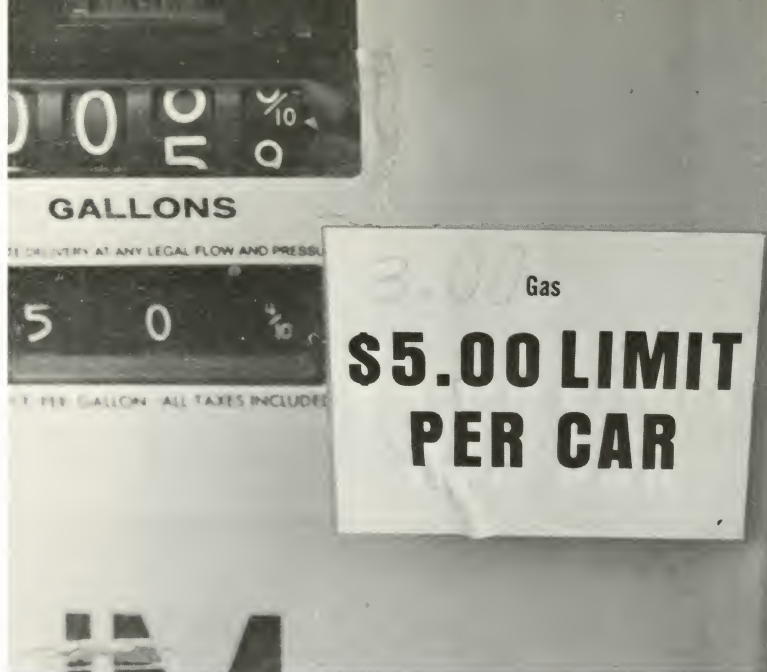

Physics is the study of natural science in which man attempts to understand and analyze the behavior of natural phenomena. Since most people believe it to be a very difficult subject to understand, members of the Physics Department have been performing experiments and holding discussions in the public school system. There, they have shown to people from nursery school on up such demonstrations as freezing bananas in liquid nitrogen and the effects of ultraviolet light on different types of dye in clothing. The Physics Department hopes these demonstrations will show that Physics can be an interesting subject that is not too very difficult.

The intramural program at ASU is designed to serve the needs and interests of every student, regardless of individual levels of physical ability. Using the format: "For the enjoyment and benefit of the student," the intramural sports program experienced a more than successful year. This success can be exemplified by the fact that over 2500 students participated in one way or another, up 25% over last year. Under the direction of Dr. Wayne Edwards and Miss Colette Garrison, 1973-74 has been the best year ever for intramurals at A.S.U.

September, beautiful crisp blue skies. Flag Football. "Hey, you're supposed to grab the flag, not my shirt!:" "Whatsa off-tackle play?" Women's lib, the men come watch the women!

Volleyball. New found friends. "Who knows how to play Power Volleyball?" Championships game, sportsmanship, fun.

Winter and THE sport. Heard thru the dorm halls, "Hey, who wants to play intramural basketball?" A break from the dorm routine and a new champion.

The rest of the year filled with badminton, co-ed volleyball, softball and tennis. Great fun, good exercise, friendships. That's intramurals.

Everyone knows that games can be emotional things and the men's intramural program at ASU is no exception. Enjoyment and self-satisfaction are two main goals of the intramural department and both of these goals can be and are captured in competition and a true desire to win.

Competition, this year, was conducted under two catagories: individual and team, where pride, teamwork, and just plain fun all combined to satisfy a variety of student interests. ASU students were given the opportunity to display their skills in areas such as one-on-one basketball, horseshoes, handball, paddleball, softball, wrestling, and track and field. Competition in these areas was conducted in 3 divisions; residence hall, club/fraternity, and graduate/ independent, with divisional champions competing for all-campus championships.

Thrills, excitement, victory, defeat, rules, refs, competition, enjoyment, awards. These are the components of the total intramural program. ASU has one.

Co-Rec Program

Main Objective: Enjoy, Enjoy, Enjoy

Secondary Objective: Participants to have 99% fun while learning

Participants: Men, Women, (Students, Faculty, Staff)

Events: Fall quarter allowed the participants to engage in body-trying and tiring activity. The fall schedule was as follows:

A "Survival" Inner Tube River Race.

Racket fans enjoyed mixed tennis and paddleball.

The ever Popular "Run-for-the-Turkey" Race, held in late November.

Spring quarter offered a totally new activity; Inner-Tube Water Basketball. Returning spring sports were: co-rec badminton, and the ever popular co-rec volleyball.

Students and faculty of ASU should consider themselves lucky. They have enjoyed the privilege of being able to check out a wide variety of athletic equipment on a no-charge basis. Basketballs, tennis rackets, paddle rackets, and balls, handball gloves and balls, are available. The Free-Play System, as does the intramural program, serves the students' needs and interests.

THE 1974 RHODODENDRON

Appalachian State University
Boone, North Carolina

Carol Shannon - Editor

Woody Williams - Business Manager

Volume 52

A beginning...of a book, an index, or of a different view of life. It consists of a systematically organized collection of relevant information for most everyone on the campus of Appalachian State University. By taking objects or people and identifying them with numbers, this practical and necessary section of the book takes shape. The story told by numbers can be read quickly. It can be glanced at as many times as desired and will always remain constant.

To some people at ASU the year was just another year—no changes. For those people, find your number, and then relive and enjoy the year 1973-74.

University Services

University Services provide a valuable resource for the student. The prices are very fair for the student as well as helpful. Within the services are the laundry, the infirmary, the cafeteria, food services, the library and the bookstore.

JUDY BAILEY, M.A.
DIRECTOR OF TESTING

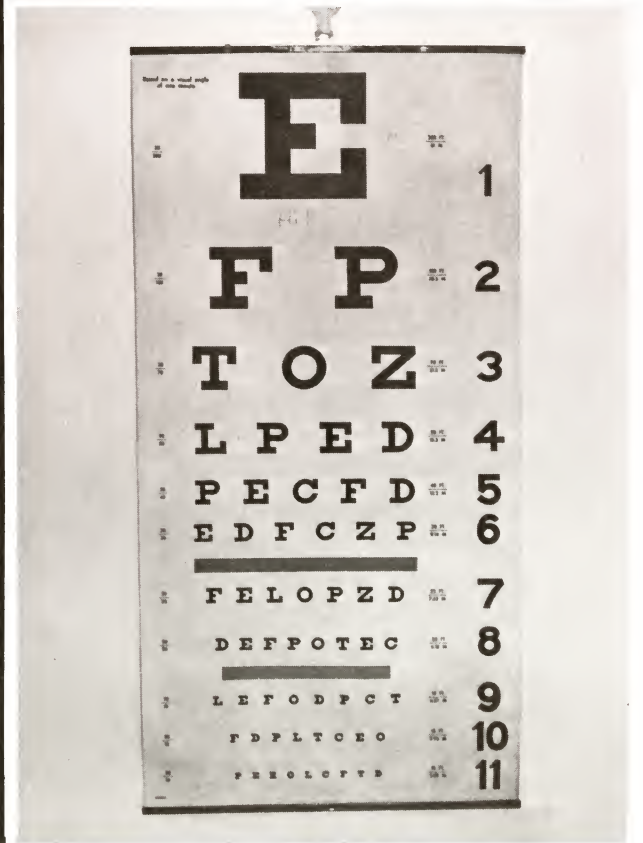

Bookstore

Whether it's paper or pens or textbooks you're needing, the bookstore is sure to have an able supply, plus enough clothing, food, and health aides to get you through a Boone winter. Somewhat like a general store, it can satisfy any want - from a sweet tooth to a card for your sweetheart. (suitey even) Students make frequent trips to this handy establishment.

Belk Library

Study? Sleep? Talk to friends or just browse. Whatever they do, the library always seems to be filled with people all day and half the night. The library has material of all sizes and descriptions. Staff members of the library include not only professional librarians but also student aides. No matter what the opinion of the library is, each student will probably use it during their college career.

Student Development

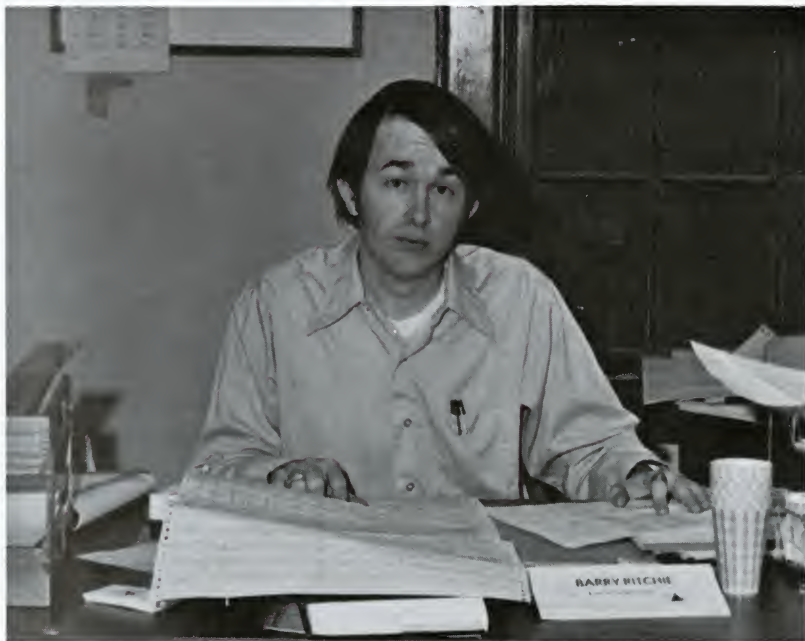

This year, the president of the Student Government has been Malcolm Carroll, the vice-president—Jeff Morgan, the treasurer—Ron Tuttle and secretary—Sue Eccles. Perhaps two of the largest accomplishments have been the Student Transit Service and the proposed January Resolution. A closed door policy has been initiated for visitation. For next year, differential housing has been proposed. The Tutorial Services have also been offered this year. As stated in many platforms S.G.A. is only what you make it. So from here, form your opinions.

Student Typesetting is headed by Mrs. Betty Jo Shore. Typesetting is done for the RHODODENDRON, THE APPALACHIAN, brochures, pamphlets, and music programs which have a departmental and campus use, are prepared by Student Typesetting. There are nine people working regularly, various others, and those who are trainees from Watauga High School.

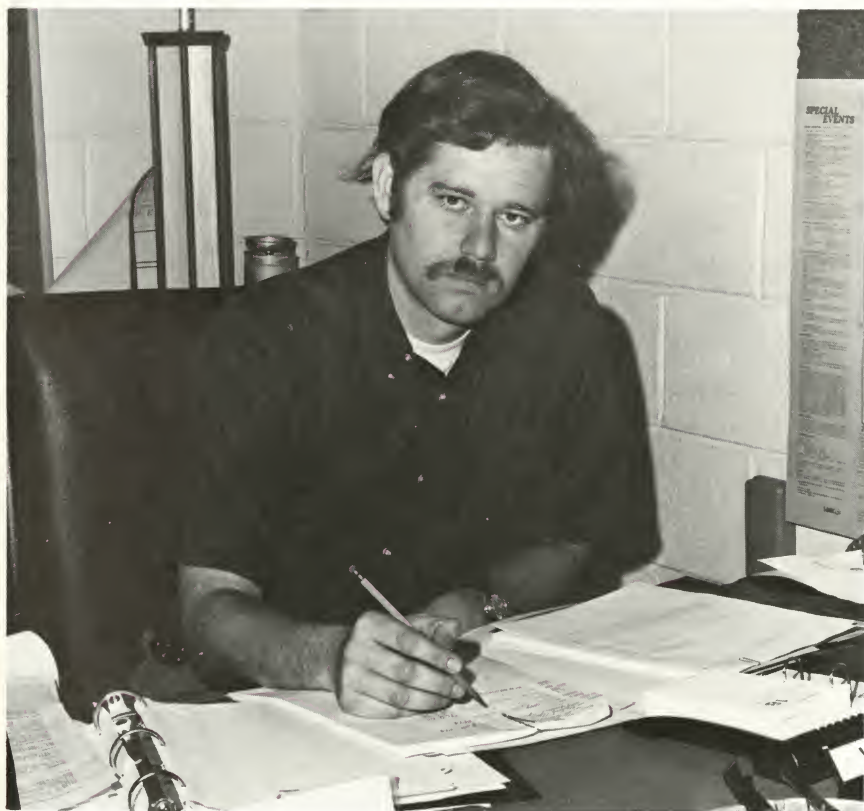

Printing

The Student Center houses everything from committees to ping pong tables. Every student can find an activity for himself there. Committees include the Fine Arts, Popular Programs, Films, Dance, Coffeehouse, and ABCO. Evidence of these committee's working can be seen with concerts, all-nighters, and the many films shown. There is a bowling league among various other groups. The above group participates in inner-collegiate competition.

Ron Whittaker is the Executive Director of the Student Union. Mike Etu is Assistant Director, while Ann Toney is the Program Director. Secretaries are Betty Horne and Paulette Proffitt. Whatever your activities may be, the Student Center includes at least one of them.

James Thompson

I AM only one,
But still I am one.
I cannot do everything,
But still I can do something;
And because I cannot do everything
I will not refuse to do the something that I can do.
